Having just made a most thorough PERSONAL INSPECTION of the CHICAGO, DANVILLE & VINCENNES R. R.,—and seen every portion of the line,—and confirmed, after strict examination, all that has been officially stated regarding its remarkably large business, and the first class character of the Road,—we recommend even more strongly than ever before its First Mortgage 7 Per Cent. The Last of the Loan

OF THE

CHICAGO, DANVILLE & VINCENNES

Railroad Company.

TO CAREFUL INVESTORS!

It is seldom that Mortgages upon new Railroads are considered sufficiently safe for the investment of Trust Funds. It is only when a Railroad is earning, net, an excess of its interest obligations, with a certainty of a steady growth, that its Bonds can be said to be perfectly safe.

The CHICAGO, DANVILLE AND VINCENNES RAILROAD is doing this, and has its certainty. That part of it known as the ILLINOIS DIVISION (from Chicago to Danville, 132 Miles,) was finished last year, and its gross earnings have increased from $34,464.07 in December, 1871, to $57,687.35 in August, 1872.

The net earnings for August were $30,413.46, or at the rate of $364,949.52 per annum. The total interest liability upon the total issue of Bonds upon both the Illinois and Indiana divisions is $280,000. gold. The Illinois division is, therefore, earning, net, more than enough to pay interest upon the entire bonded debt upon the whole road.

THE INDIANA DIVISION,

is about eighty miles in length, traversing extensive Bituminous Coal fields, and making a direct and the shortest possible line between Chicago and the Block Coal district at Brazil.

The Iron and other materials for the Indiana Division have all been bought and paid for in cash; a part of it is now in operation, and the entire Division is to be finished this season and opened to a profitable business.

The company is not in debt, and owns a large and very valuable real estate in Chicago, beside having an equipment of twenty-five first-class locomotives and about 900 cars.

A first mortgage upon such a road, at the rate of $18,500 per mile is a safe investment, and we know of no other railroad bond, at the price asked for this, that can demonstrate a similar value as a security for savings banks and others.

We have sold nearly two millions of these bonds to savings banks, trust companies and the most careful investors, and have but $850,000 bonds remaining.

They are for $1,000 each, and have forty years to run. Interest payable April and October. Present price 90 and accrued interest from October 1st in currency.

7 PER CENT. GOLD,

The last week of our sales of ILLINOIS DIVISION BONDS amounted to $500,000. Early orders are therefore suggested, in order to secure any portion of this extremely desirable loan.

MORMON WIVES.—My father's first wife, Ann, showed by her wan and spiritless demeanor that, coarse as she was, a woman's heart beat in her bosom; and Eliza, like many another Mormon bride, felt that her welcome was more hostile than hearty. Like Ann, she neglected us children. She was a fat, sleepy-brained woman, who neither enjoyed nor suffered greatly.

As I grew older I mixed more freely with the people of the country, partly from curiosity, but principally because father laid his commands upon me. I studied the women, and found that they were stolid, heavy-eyed, and indolent. The married women have pathetic faces, and fade young. With all the sophistry which is woven about them, they have dreams of "the might have been," of the joy that comes in its completeness to the heart that is all-in-all to one alone. Their cry goes up to God for divine love, but their unsatisfied hearts are doomed to be forever hungry for the love that is human. Oh, happy wives! who are sheltered in the sunshine of a good man's heart—a heart which belongs to you, and you a one—can you imagine anything more like the apples of Sodom than the Mormon marriages!

I do not wish to give the impression that there were any highly refined or cultivated women in Utah, for I do not remember one to whom an intelligent, superior man would turn for intellectual enjoyment; not one whom a poet might dream of or an artist desire to paint. To a stranger they assume a joyful demeanor. This their religion not only inculcates, but enjoins to such an extent that no woman would dare carry a sad face intentionally any more than she would parade a disgrace. No sad hymn or chant is tolerated; no one repeats a tale of misery to his neighbor on pain of Brother Brigham's displeasure. Their joys are frequently discussed, their sorrows never. The women in the same house (not home) are commanded to be sisters to each other, and their tow-headed, all the way-rounded black-headed progeny tumble about promiscuously on the same grass-plot before the door. That they don't all go mad or kill each other is owing to what that powerful but ignorant, sensual animal, Heber Kemball, called, "triumph o' grace."—November Galaxy.

THE SLOWEST RAILROAD EVER HEARD OF.—A correspondent of the New York Sun recently wrote to his paper as follows:

"A railroad runs from Oswego to Syracuse. It is thirty-six miles long. I rode on it, and those cars moved so slow that if you want the draft in your face you have to ride backward to get it. They never have hot journals on that road; the great danger is, the stuffing and gravy around the axles will freeze. The screech of the locomotive is very faint, kind of like the warble of a four year old boy, blowing through a knot-hole in a board fence. It is capable of giving a grasshopper a thrill of alarm, but won't scare a cow worth a cent. The conductor, engineer and fireman always walk ahead of the train to look for broken rails, and the cows always run ahead of them to keep out of the dust. I tried an experiment. Two trains were passing, and I stuck a match out of the window and let the head of it rub against a passenger car. It went so slow I couldn't strike a light. If you ever take a trip from Oswego to Syracuse over that road you want to take lots of clothes, a whole ham and a barrel of corned beef along with you."

LONDON SWITCHES.—Government regulates everything about the English railroads. The road-bed is laid under Government inspection, and royal oversight is taken of every rail. No road can cross another, or cross a highway, on the same level; bridges or tunnels must be resorted to. It is felony to cross the tracks from one side of the station to another. Switchmen are made the subjects of peculiar care. They are a choicely selected lot of men. A house is erected over the tracks, enclosed on all sides with glass windows, carpeted and warmed. The handles of the switches come up into this room, and are ornamented like the handles of a beer-fountain. They are all numbered, and are called "Points." Conspicuous in the room is the painted caution, "Mind your Points." The room is light, made warm from a fire and made cheery by a carpet and flowers. Here the switchman takes his position, sheltered from the storm and wind, in a room comfortable and cheery; if he makes a mistake something more than reprimand and dismissal await him. His offence is a crime, and the State will punish him by fine and imprisonment. With all this outlay, accidents occur—switches will be misplaced—and statistics show that there are more such accidents in England than in America.

The chairman of one of the Democratic committees in Hartford, Ct., fell asleep on election day in a saloon, and while in that condition a wag sketched in charcoal on his smooth face a moustache, imperial and side whiskers, and ticketed him as "Chairman of the —— Ward on his way West." Then the sleepy committee man was aroused and invited to take a drink.

We have seven regularly established navy yards. Not more than four of these are capable of fitting out but two or three vessels at one time. In all this is felt the want of more docks. In the event of a maritime war this deficiency would be seriously felt—perhaps to a greater extent than any other of our pressing wants. The dock yards at Cherbourg and Toulon, in France, and at Portsmouth, in Great Britain, each contain a greater number of dry docks than all our yards combined, and some of the other dock yards of these Powers are but slightly inferior to those named.

A good looking Comanche Indian Chief visiting Washington, has fallen in love with the daughter of a millionaire at the National Capital, and the latter has reciprocated the "tender" feeling of youthful "Lo." The parents of the light-hearted girl have been obliged to send her to Europe to cure the misguided daughter of her silly passion. A few months experience as the "Squaw" of Mr. "Lo" would nip the tender passion like an October frost.

At Deer Isle on Monday, the 28th ult., a small trading vessel of fifty tons burthen, Josiah Leach, of Rockland, master, and lying at Green's Landing, was shattered by the explosion of sixteen pounds of powder. So great was the concussion that the vessel was split from stem to stern. Capt. Leach was severely but not fatally injured, and two others on board at the same time, Robert Merchant and a young man by the name of Childs, were also injured and bruised.

THE GREAT FIRE.

We devote a large portion of our space to-day to such an account of the great fire as we could hastily compile from the voluminous reports of the Boston papers. It is reassuring to find that the journals and business men of that city are both hopeful and determined, and the prospect that the insurance interest will be able to withstand the shock without extensive disasters as feared, relieves much of the gloom which at first prevailed. It is to be hoped that the losses may still come below the hurried estimates and that every day will lighten the prospect of those who are going manfully at work to restore the beautiful and thriving city.

The first alarm was given about 7.15 P. M. Saturday, when flames were discovered bursting from windows of the mansard roof of the large, four story new granite building on the corner of Kingston and Summer streets, numbered 87, 89 and 91 Summer street and extending back about 100 feet on Kingston. The lower floor and the basement were occupied by Messrs. Tebbets, Baldwin & Davis, wholesale dry goods dealers; the second and third stories by Damon, Temple & Co., dealers in hosiery, gloves, laces and small wares; the fourth and upper stories by A. K. Young, corset and hoop skirt maker. The general theory given is that the fire caught in the engine room and swept up the light elevator to the roof where it ran from window to window with frightful rapidity. In ten minutes flames were bursting from every opening in the roof, and ten minutes more volumes and waves of flame were rolling out from every window in the third story with such terrific force that the fate of the building was decided.

At this time there was not a breeze stirring, but the fire had gained great headway, in a few minutes each flat was on fire, and though the firemen were promptly on the ground, the flames were above their reach. The heat from the building became intense, and it was soon demonstrated that all efforts to save it or extinguish the fire within were unavailing. Before 8 o'clock the whole Fire Department was on duty in the vicinity, and the situation became so alarming that aid from abroad was summoned. The spreading of the terrible calamity was started in the fall of the burning building. Instead of falling in a harmless way the walls parted and tumbled with a crash in different directions, one falling into Summer street, another into Kingston street, and a third portion falling back upon a smaller building in the rear. Each fall was fateful and scattered the fire to the three points of the compass. A fresh breeze was now blowing, generally from the northwest, although the wind occasionally came to the due westward and a point or two to the south. The fearful heat of the burning building before it fell had affected the adjoining structures and the flames quickly communicated to them.

Starting at the easterly corner of Summer and Kingston streets the fire crossed Kingston street to the westerly corner of Kingston and Summer streets; then over Summer street to the corner of Otis street, taking the whole block bounded by Otis, Devonshire and Summer streets and Winthrop Square, known as the Beebe block. Then it passed up Summer street towards Washington on both sides of Summer street. On the south side of Summer street it was stopped by the large store of C. F. Hovey & Co., a few doors west of Chauncy street. On the northerly side of Summer street passed up to Washington street, taking Trinity Church in its course and only leaving the building on the northerly corner of Washington and Summer streets, occupied by the Waltham Watch Company and A. C. Mudge. Then it took the whole of Washington street on the easterly side down to the corner of Washington and Milk streets, where the low building on the corner, occupied by Currier & Trott, jewelers, was blown to pieces with powder, at about six o'clock Sunday morning.

During the whole night the fire was marching steadily toward the water easterly, carried by the northwesterly wind. The water was reached by the flames about midnight, taking all the stores on the southerly side of Summer street, the new block of buildings at the junction of Bedford and Summer streets, ending in the destruction of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad depot. At the same time the fire spread to the right and left, taking as its outer course to the north toward State street. From the corner of Milk and Washington streets the march of the fire was along the southerly side of Milk street, until it passed the new Post Office building, when it crossed Water street, and finally at a late hour Sunday forenoon attacked the Post Office on State street. The last and only permanent check to the fire was effected just as it had reached the northern side of Lindall street. But in getting there it had sprung upon the old Post office and sub-Treasury, in the Merchants' Exchange building. This was reached by the roof and upper windows, and in its partly demolished state now marks the extreme progress of the fire northward. The treasure and valuable papers were all saved and the mail matter, [illegible] 150,000 letters also preserved. The last buildings on the north end of Congress street reached by the fire are the brick and stone buildings on the southeast corner of Post Office avenue, and the store occupied by [illegible] Bros. & Co., Gardner & Co., and others and the block of stores on the opposite side. This left in reality but two whole buildings on this street, and these have their fronts on State street.

The new Post Office building, which stood directly in the path of the fire, was damaged to a considerable extent, the entablature over both the rear ends of the Water and Milk street fronts being injured to such an extent as to require their taking down and rebuilding. The intense heat on both sides of the edifice caused the stone columns supporting the pediments to crumble and fall in large flakes, while from the capitals and other projections the corners were disintegrated and rounded.

Extending along Devonshire street the building house of Kreeland, Harding & Richardson afforded a splendid avenue, and the wind swept through the long passage-ways, coming out at the rear end which fronts on Federal street, and communicating with the houses alongside. Here it fairly reveled in destruction, and raised a breeze which swept a cloud of dust, dirt and coals up the street, in which no human being could live. There was no time lost here; the only thing was to flee for one's life, and that was done quickly.

From eleven o'clock until midnight the fire made terrible headway. The efforts of the firemen seemed baffled and fruitless. On every hand the flames were sweeping away the most superb warehouses and the staunchest business blocks in the city. Arch street, Otis street and Summer street from Hawley street to Church Green were one great mass of flame. The fire did not move so fast down Kingston street. A huge force of steamers was put to work in Avon Place, Bedford street and the streets farther east, and thus opposed a great check was applied to the southern course of the conflagration, although it was hours afterwards before the firemen felt sure that at last they had won a foothold against the flames. The huge mass of flame which rose from the acres of roofing now ablaze, illuminated up the heavens until every tower and steeple glowed with a lurid and unearthly beauty. A vast cloud of cinders that rose from the great caldron of fire was carried out upon the waters of the bay, covering all the intermediate property between Otis street and the Hartford and Erie wharves. The great pillars of flame which loomed far above the burning buildings admonished the inhabitants of that large and thickly settled section known as the South Cove that their household goods were in danger, and a general movement of furniture and all portable property into the streets and southward began.

In all the vast area described only the granite building, corner of Washington and Summer, occupied by A. C. Mudge and the American Watch Co., remains standing. From this point, the stores on Washington street to and beyond Franklin are prostrated. Only the marble facade and a portion of the rear wall of the great store of McCullar, Williams and Parker remain standing; the Mt. Vernon Bank, Mercantile Building, all the stores in the streets running from Summer to Franklin, including Hawley, Arch, Otis and Devonshire streets, with the old "Billy Gray" mansion, the "Home of Webster," the Pine building and all the rest, are a heap of ruins. A portion of the circular wall is all that is left of the block of leather stores extending along High, from Summer to Federal.

Down Summer to Broad, the flames swallowed up the B. H. & E. depots, the leather stores on Purchase street, the Episcopal Church, and swept both sides of Broad street past Congress and Pearl nearly to Oliver, the eastward progress checked only by the water of Fort Hill Channel. Tileston's, Prentiss, Russia, Rowe street and Liverpool wharves were swept by the fire, which was checked in its course along the harbor front and before reaching the coal wharf of Batchelder Brothers, No. 226 Broad and nearly opposite the front of Oliver street. As far as can be ascertained but one vessel was destroyed—the schooner Louisa Fraser, of Little Egg Harbor, which was discharging coal at the wharf of Shepard Robbins—which was burned to the water's edge as she lay in the dock.

The wide space intervening between the rear of the stores on Broad and Pearl streets and the line of Wendell street, which resulted from the removal of Fort Hill, offered a field whereon the fire expended its heat in vain, and stayed its further progress in the direction of Atlantic avenue and India wharf. The heat of the fire was so intense in Broad street that the rails of the Union Freight Railway were warped and bent upward from the stringers in many places. The fire was got under control at the northern end of Broad street about half-past seven o'clock Sunday morning.

The fire in Washington street was stopped at Currier and Trott's jewelry store on the southeast corner of Washington and Milk streets. While the Transcript building, adjoining, was in flames, an attempt was made to blow up this one which was only partially successful, the walls not being thrown down, but here nevertheless the fire was stayed and the venerable Old South Church saved, although its windows, as those of all the buildings in the vicinity, are blown out. The front walls of all the buildings on the east side of Washington street, from Milk street to the iron-front building occupied by Fowle, Torrey & Co., as a carpet warehouse, and including the latter, are standing. Then there is a gap extending to the front wall of McCullar, Williams & Co.'s building, the front walls of all the lofty buildings, some of which were of granite and some of iron, having fallen into Washington street, which was blocked up with the piles of ruins. From here to the corner of Summer all is prostrate, ruins and ashes.

Pearl street, the great shoe and leather centre of the city, presents a scene of dreary piles of calcined granite and smoking heaps of dull-red bricks; from Fort Hill nothing is seen but black, fragments of walls towering to a height of a hundred feet, with a width of perhaps no more than twenty or twenty-five feet at the base while here and there a tall chimney shows like a great black needle in the distance. The fire reached Pearl street at half-past [illegible] o'clock, the store of J. H. Putnam and Wheeler, at No. 98, bursting into flames at that time. The buildings on this street were plain and simple in their architecture, and presented a remarkably substantial appearance. While Pearl street was burning, along to the north the work of destruction was still going on. The flames were rapidly licking up a block of tenements near by, while off beyond great clouds of dense black smoke belched out, and crackling flames, with now and then the ominous "boom" of a building blown up, told that the conflagration was raging as fiercely as ever, and now among the paint and oil stores down by the Custom House.

In Franklin street there is scarcely a wall standing. The buildings on this street were all of granite, with the exception of the flat-roof freestone building at the corner of Washington street. One of the most imposing edifices on the street was the double Mansard-roof block erected within the last four years by Mr. Patrick Donahoe, which was one of the last to yield to the flames. The Bank of N. America and National Revere are included in this burned district. Franklin street has long been celebrated as having the finest business architecture in America; the buildings were generally four or five stories high with Mansard roofs.

Hawley, Arch and Otis streets are leveled throughout. The southward progress of the conflagration was checked a little to the south of Summer street by concentrating the greater number of the engines in the streets leading off of that thoroughfare. On Chauncey street the fire was stopped before reaching the magnificent Concord granite block, the first floor of which is occupied by Lewis, Coleman & Co. On Kingston street the fire worked as far south as the warehouses extend. Those on the east side of the street were completely destroyed and the new granite building on the west side had the Mansard roof burned off. On Lincoln street, the stores were destroyed, and some of the tenement houses were also burned, but the well known "Crystal Palace" was not harmed. On South street the fine new stores in process of erection there were destroyed. On Broad street coal-wharves and tenement houses were burned, and the harbor alone stayed its progress in that direction. On Bedford street the dwelling-houses in the vicinity of the Old Church Green were burned.

High street, from one end to the other, is one mass of smoking ruins. Bricks, stone, twisted iron columns and other debris cover the street in some places to a height of twelve feet. The fire reached the southerly end about 11 P. M., turned steadily along the west side for some distance, and finally leaping the street enveloped everything in one mass of seething flame.

The flames were first communicated to the buildings on Devonshire street at about nine o'clock. At half past eleven all that was left of the Winthrop Block, the bare walls, fell in with a crash which shook the ground and buildings within a radius of half a mile. The building occupied by Gardner Brewer, opposite the Cathedral, soon after became enveloped in flames, and Mr. Damrell decided that to save State street from destruction it would be necessary to blow up the entire blocks of buildings facing on both sides of Devonshire street. Arrangements were immediately made, and the buildings on both sides of the street were blown up, one after another, in quick succession. The time occupied in destroying these stores, some sixty in number, was about one hour. In "laying the trains" two kegs of powder, of sixty pounds each, were used on each building. At three o'clock Sunday morning, that part of Devonshire street between Milk and Summer streets was in ruins. The new post office, which was thought to be fire proof, was badly damaged, the granite on the south side being crumbled by the heat so that it will have to be replaced. There was no wood-work about the building except the temporary floors which fortunately did not ignite. Owing to the post office, the building of the Boston Post and other structures on Devonshire and Water streets were saved. The windows of the entire building were shattered to fragments. The buildings on the west side of Devonshire street, between Milk and Water streets, miraculously escaped destruction. The Rialto building, or at least that part of the building now in process of erection on the corner of Milk street, saved the entire block from the flames. The block comprised two large buildings, one of which was occupied by the National Bank of the Commonwealth.

Everything on Milk street as far as Batterymarch street, is completely destroyed; a tall chimney or tottering wall being all that is left. The same may be said of Kilby as far as the stone block No. 31, occupied by the Delaware Mutual Life Insurance Co., where the flames were brought to a standstill after burning one-half of it. Liberty Square is a heap of ruins, and the same along Batterymarch street to Milk. On Water street the flames have left their marks upon the roof and upper stories of the eastern end of the Post building, the composing room being pretty well burnt out, while the lower stories, used as offices by various parties, received a general wetting down and smashing of windows.

On Congress street the fire spread rapidly from Broad up the east side to High. The buildings on the west side, from No. 153 to Milk street, were, like those on Federal and Devonshire streets, blown up. At 10 A. M., Sunday, however, the flames reached Milk street, thence to Water and on to Liberty Square towards State street, where the fire made its last determined fight.

Noon of Sunday was nearly reached before people could feel that the fire was really under the power of the firemen. Then the destroyer had moved its front in the face of the wind a third of a mile from where it started on Summer street, through the noble edifices of trade on the avenues of Devonshire, Congress, Kilby and Batterymarch streets, and directly on towards the wealth contained in the State street vaults.

At midnight, on Sunday an explosion of gas occurred on Summer street near Shreve, Crump & Low's store, (which was burned), followed by other explosions and an alarming renewal of the fire. The engines were rapidly concentrated and after a fierce struggle again conquered the flames about 4 A. M. In the meantime the city gas supply was gone and brooding darkness prevailed. Although Jordan & Marsh's store was in great danger, by the tremendous exertions of the firemen the establishment was saved, together with the Park House and others which were on fire. The large wholesale house of Jordan, Marsh & Co., was saved by wet blankets.

The Advertiser computes the area of the burnt district to slightly exceed sixty-four acres, or 2,787,840 square feet. Deducting the space covered by streets, the area occupied by buildings is a little less than two million square feet. It estimates the real estate losses at about $20,000,000 and the entire losses at about $80,000,000. The Journal estimates the total loss at nearly $200,000,000. The insurance has not as yet been carefully ascertained, though hastily estimated at $12,000,000. The valuation of Boston in 1870 was $584,000,000, which has probably been increased at least to $[illegible]. The loss by the Chicago fire was $196,000,000,—the amount assigned to buildings being $53,000,000, and to merchandise and personal effects, $143,000,000. The Boston fire, covering less than a thirtieth of the space, was therefore in losses very nearly one-half that of the great Chicago calamity. The loss by the great fire of 1835 in New York was variously estimated at from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000. The memorable conflagration in Portland on the 4th of July, 1866, covered two hundred acres and destroyed property to the value of $10,000,000.

MEXICO. A letter received at Matamoras from President Lerdo de Tejada and the Mexican Minister of Foreign Relations states that the Mexican Frontier Commission will strictly investigate complaints as to cattle stealing, and that the Mexican government will aid the United States in putting an end to all disturbances. The Mexican government is resolved to foster internal improvements, to connect Mexico with the United States by rail and to encourage foreign immigration.

In ninety counties of Virginia heard from to the 9th inst., Grant led Greeley by 10,025 majority, and was regarded as certain to carry the State by at least 3,000. The Congressional delegation will stand five Democrats to four Republicans, a gain of one for the latter.

Consumption can be Cured.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP,
SCHENCK'S SEAWEED TONIC,
SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS,

are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption.

Sometimes medicines that will stop a cough will often occasion the death of the patient. It locks up the liver, stops the circulation of the blood, hemorrhage follows, and, in fact, clogging the action of the very organs that caused the cough.

Liver complaint and dyspepsia are the causes of two thirds of the cases of consumption. Many are now complaining with dull pain in the side, the bowels sometimes costive and sometimes too loose, tongue coated, pain in the shoulder blade, feeling sometimes very restless, and at other times drowsy; the food that is taken lies heavily on the stomach, accompanied with acidity and belching of wind. These symptoms usually originate from a disordered condition of the stomach or a torpid liver. Persons so affected, if they take one or two heavy colds, and if the cough in these cases be suddenly stopped, the lungs, liver and stomach clog, and remain torpid and inactive, and, before the patient is aware of his situation, the lungs are a mass of sores, and ulcerated, and death is the inevitable result.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is an expectorant which does not contain any opium, nor anything calculated to check a cough suddenly.

Schenck's Seaweed tonic dissolves the food, mixes with the gastric juice of the stomach, digests easily, nourishes the system, and creates a healthy circulation of the blood. When the bowels are costive, skin sallow, and the patient is of a bilious habit, Schenck's Mandrake Pills are required.

These medicines are prepared by Dr. J. H. SCHENCK & SON, Northeast corner of Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, Penn., and for sale by GEO. C. GOODWIN & CO., Hanover street, Boston, & JOHN F. HENRY, 8 College place, New York, Wholesale Agents.

For sale by Druggists generally.

The other [illegible] vaults, with contents, are all safe. [illegible] books of the Hide and Leather Bank are [illegible], destroyed.

THE INSURANCE.

It is impossible to give anything like an accurate or even approximate report of the insurance. Some of the largest firms have not had time to look over their policies.

FAVORABLE.

At an informal meeting of leading Insurance officers to-day, the statement was made that losses would be paid in full.

TENDERS OF AID—HELP NEEDED.

At a meeting of the Citizens' Relief Committee to-day, Mayor Gaston read dispatches from Gov. Geary of Pennsylvania, the Mayors of Cincinnati, Chicago, Indianapolis, Providence and other cities, tendering sympathy [illegible] aid. After some discussion it was voted [illegible] the sense of the meeting that the Mayor be requested to reply that pecuniary aid would [illegible] most acceptable.

PERSONS MISSING.

[illegible] Burr and George Smith, the former of Worcester and latter of Neponset, came to [illegible] Saturday evening to see the fire.— They were last seen in the vicinity of Chauncy street and it is feared have been killed by [illegible] walls. N. E. Abbott, a Charlestown fireman, is missed by his friends and it is [illegible] that he has been killed.

THE CITY IS IN DARKNESS

[illegible] to-night owing to the labor of disconnecting the mains from the burnt district. All newspaper and other necessary work is being done to-night by lamp and candle light.

An efficient military and police guard is on duty and all fear of a re-kindling of the flames [illegible] at an end. Gilmore has placed the [illegible] at the disposal of parties wanting [illegible] to store goods.

COMMITTEES OF RELIEF.

A committee of ladies has been formed especially to look after the thousands of sewing girls thrown out of employment.

Propositions are being urged for making [illegible] street lines over the burnt district; also for the erection of the Merchants' Exchange building.

A committee has been appointed to ask the General Government to purchase the burned [illegible] lot adjoining the new Post Office for enlarging that building; also to request the Massachusetts Congressmen to secure the passage of act allowing the same drawback on building material as was allowed Portland and Chicago.

The committee of twenty citizens have voted to request Gov. Washburn to call a special session of the Legislature to authorize the city of Boston to issue a sufficient amount of 1 per cent bonds to aid sufferers in rebuilding.

CHICAGO RESPONDS.

At a meeting in Chicago to-day $10,000 was subscribed and a Committee headed by Rev. Robert Collyer appointed to convey it to the Boston sufferers.

THE TREASURY AND POST OFFICE.

The funds of the Sub-Treasury were removed from the Exchange to-day to the Custom House, a file of marines escorting the Treasurer. The Post Office is temporarily located in Faneuil Hall. Postmaster Burt does every thing possible under circumstances to expedite the distribution of mail matter.

PLAYING ON THE RUINS.

Midnight—Steam engines are busy to-night playing on the debris of the great fire, and all streets leading thereto are strictly guarded. Although the city is dark and gloomy, there being no gas, large crowds hovered in the vicinity of the ruins until a late hour.

NEW YORK CITY.

EXCITEMENT OVER THE BOSTON FIRE—THE STOCK MARKET UNSETTLED—BROKERS SUSPENDED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. The stock market has been panicy all the morning in consequence of the Boston fire, and prices declined 5 a 10 per cent. Suspensions are reported of S. V. White; Pilo, Berry & Co.; H. R. Wilcox, and R. J. Kimball & Co.; all on the "long" side of the market, and for whose account stocks have been sold out under the rule. The market is now steadier, and it would appear as if the worst was over.

THE INSURANCE COMPANIES

nearly all have their windows placarded with statements of their condition, and many say they have sustained little or no loss. The heaviest losers are the large companies, who best able to stand their losses.

A NEW YORK ESTIMATE OF LOSSES AND INSURANCE.

NEW YORK Nov. 11—Evening. The great calamity at Boston was the topic of discussion to-day, through financial and trade circles. Many conservative underwriters place the loss at $75,000,000; and an insurance of $50,000,000, of which fifteen or twenty millions are borne by British companies, in which since the Chicago fire many American companies have re-insured.

A CITIZENS' MEETING

of leading business men was held to-day and measures taken to extend active aid, and sympathy to Boston.

THE INSURANCE COMPANIES.

The excitement in insurance circles here is intense. The suspension of the Humboldt and International Companies is announced. The Spectator gives a list of losses of which those $100,000 and over are as follows:

City of New York,	$ 130,000
German American,	100,000
Germania,	275,000
Hanover,	275,000
Standard,	357,000

Liv. Lon. & Globe	1,630,300
Firemens,	122,000

Springfield,	250,000
Tradesman's,	240,000

Hartford "	250,000
Conn, "	90,000
Orient, "	150,000
National "	125,000
Phenix, "	450,000

OTHER COMPANIES.

All the Providence Companies say they will come out straight. The American and Mercantile of Boston, will go on. The Boston must stop. New Jersey Companies lose only a trifling amount. The Continental Insurance Company of New York has assets amounting to over $2,000,000. If the entire amount at risk within the district is a total loss one half of its surplus will pay for it.

THE MONEY MARKET.

It is known that the United States Treasury will aid the money market if necessary by selling largely gold and buying bonds.

STOVES FOR BOSTON.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Mr. Sanford on the part of the National Stove Works, donated 25 stoves to the committee for immediate shipment to Boston. The Erie Railway offered to transport every article sent to Boston sufferers free of charge.

SERMONS

were preached on the Boston fire by Revs. Beecher and Bellows, both of whom condemned narrow streets and the use of Mansard roofs as the cause of these calamities.

THE TRIBUNE ON THE FIRE.

The N. Y. Tribune, referring to the effects of the calamity upon business generally, and upon the insurance interests, says:

There may be difficulties, but no permanent paralysis. The Boston merchants are made of stronger stuff than to succumb to such misfortunes as these. We shall see them rise superior to their calamities, and it is almost superfluous to state that they will have the sympathy and practical assistance of all commercial classes throughout the land. The pressing question is that of the ability of the insurance companies to confront their losses. The habit of Boston merchants was to insure mainly in their own offices, or those of neighboring towns.

The losses are undoubtedly exaggerated, as they always are upon such occasions, and upon the first report. A careful estimation made by a competent person has been furnished us and this puts the probable loss at $100,000,000. If it should prove to be no more than this, the large, sound companies of this city will, we think, meet their losses promptly and in full. The companies which were greatly crippled by the Chicago fire may require all their energy and resources to carry them through, but so far as insurance and the relief which it can afford is concerned the outlook is not so gloomy as it might be.

In the hurry of the occasion, and before a calm estimate can be intelligently made of the situation, it is impossible to say in what definite way other cities can assist Boston in her emergency. But, as a city historically endeared to the American people, as the seat of social refinement, of elegant culture and of philanthropic activity; as the center to which the results of New England's multifarious industries naturally tend, she is entitled to unlimited sympathy, and especially from those who have not yet forgotten the lavish generosity with which she has come to the assistance of more than one of her sisters similarly afflicted. She has the heart, as she will at once have the helping hand, of the Nation.

FUNERAL OF GEN. MEADE.

DISTINGUISHED MOURNERS.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11. Among the prominent arrivals here to attend the funeral of Gen. Meade are President Grant, Gens. Sherman, Sheridan, Porter, Ingalls, Gilmore and Forrester; Commodore Stembell, Secretary Robeson, Ex-Gov. Curtin, officers of the 7th New York and 5th Maryland regiments.

BUSINESS SUSPENDED—THE SERVICES.

Business is almost entirely suspended, flags are everywhere draped in mourning and every buildings, out of respect to the memory of Gen. Meade. The route over which the funeral cortege is moving is filled with people. Early this morning the body of the deceased was removed from the house to St. Mark's Church where it was placed in front of the altar, guarded by a detail selected by Gen. McDowell. Long before half-past 10 o'clock the time fixed for the services the Church was packed. The officiating clergymen were Rev. Mr. Hoffman, Bishop Odenheimer and Bishop Whipple, the first named Bishop read the prayer, and the latter made an address eulogistic of the deceased.

THE FUNERAL PROCESSION

commenced moving about half past 11 o'clock and took nearly an hour to pass a given point. The National, State and City officials vied with private citizens to honor the dead. The coffin was carried on a gun carriage drawn by six horses and followed by a horse led with saddle and boots reversed. The coffin was covered with the American flag, and a sword and wreath on top.

GENERAL GRANT,

in citizen's dress rode in an open carriage, accompanied by Geo. H. Stuart and other gentlemen. Generals Sherman, Sheridan and other officers appeared in full uniform. The procession was a very imposing affair.

WASHINGTON.

THE BOSTON FIRE AND THE CURRENCY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11. Secretary Boutwell will take no action relative to the financial complications which may grow out of the Boston fire, unless deemed necessary and recommended by Assistant Secretary Richardson, and the Comptroller of the Currency, Knox, who are examining into the condition of the Boston National banks, etc. The Secretary does not anticipate any financial panic.

CONNECTICUT LOSSES.

THE HARTFORD COMPANIES SOUND!

TOTAL LOSS $2,000,000!

THEY WILL PAY EVERY DOLLAR!

THE NEWS IN HARTFORD—THE COMPANIES SAFE.

HARTFORD, Nov. 10. There has been great excitement all day over the fire in Boston. In insurance circles there was at first a great anxiety felt; but when the officers obtained a correct report of the fire limits and had examined their books, there was a feeling of relief, as the losses were not near so great as had been anticipated. Every company here will go through in safety, but many who were depending upon January dividends will suffer great disappointment.

THE INSURANCE LOSSES.

The Connecticut Company loses the least and will pay every dollar out of their surplus. The National loses $125,000 and its surplus is $110,000. The Orient loses $150,000 and has a surplus of just about that amount.

will to-morrow issue the following circular to their agents. It is probable that the loss will be much less than the aggregate of policies as large stocks of goods were removed:

Phoenix Ins. Co., Hartford Nov. 11, 1872.

To the Agents of the Company—

GENTS. We have advices from our agent, in Boston which are confirmed by the records at this office, that our policies in the burned district will not exceed five hundred thousand dollars. Our net assets, after deducting all liabilities previous to the fire, are upwards of $1,400,000. Our agents are directed to improve the opportunity to secure all good business offering at full rates.

(Signed) F. H. KELLOGG.

has issued the following card to its agents:

Our entire amount at risk in the burned district and vicinity, is $600,000. From later information received our probable loss is about $500,000. The old Hartford has two millions three hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars assets and will meet its engagements as promptly as it did its Chicago losses.

(Signed) GEO. L. CHASE.

The Aetna losses, though not definitely ascertained, but fully approximated, will not exceed $750,000. It has capital and assets of over $6,000,000.

The total losses by the Hartford Companies will not be but a trifle over $2,000,000. They are all safe.

The Washington Patriot, a Democratic organ started by "Boss" Tweed and others and subsequently bought by other leading Democrats and brought to a reluctant support of Greeley, is about giving up the ghost, its stockholders having voted to suspend publication. In one of its latest articles the expiring organ lays the blame for the woes of itself and party upon Horace White of the Chicago Tribune, Murat Halstead of the Cincinnati Commercial, Samuel Bowles of the Springfield Republican, and Henry Waterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal for having forced a candidate upon the Democratic party whom it was impossible to elect. It says:

"These journalists are all capable men in their proper sphere, but running conventions and dictating as to Presidents is not their strong point. Mr. Greeley was beaten because his theories were feared. False as was the reason, it does not change the fact. [illegible]

A jury will be drawn in New York, on [illegible] for the trial of the [illegible]

ADRIFT. Two rafts of lumber broke loose from the docks about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and coming down on the swift current of the river, collided with the schooners Raven, Ambassador, Clarissa, and Georgia, breaking them from their moorings and starting them all down stream. The vessels by collision with each other suffered some damage to their rigging, and the rafts were broken and smashed up, greatly endangering the lives of a dozen men who were on them. About half of one raft hung under the bows of the Raven nearly all the afternoon, and a large crew of men in boats were busy picking up the floating lumber, which belonged to Messrs. W. T. Pearson, James Walker, Cutler, Thatcher & Co., and S. B. Gilman.

PURPURA HEMORRHAGIA. Following closely the epizootic, this fearful disease has appeared among the horses in Portland and vicinity. A valuable horse belonging to Mr. Mabry of Deering, was taken with the symptoms of the disease Thursday afternoon. His legs below the knee are said to have swelled to the size of a man's thigh. A case was also reported in the city, in which the hoof began to rot. The general characteristics are: swelling of the legs, shelling of the hoof, and stoppage of the air passages. An invariable symptom of the disease is a small white spot which appears on the black portion of the eye ball. So far the result has been invariably fatal. Those horses which have been worked when not fully recovered from the epizootic, are most subject to it, though it is said not to be confined to this class.

THE HORSE DISTEMPER. The excitement concerning the horse distemper seems to have abated, as well as the disease itself, in and about this city. No horses have died recently, and most of the affected animals are rapidly recovering. Trucking with horses is about as lively as it was before the advent of the distemper, though oxen are still used in considerable numbers. In the surrounding towns the epizootic is still reported as raging. In Kenduskeag hardly a horse but is sick. In Orono most of the affected horses are reported doing well, though some are still very sick, and a valuable mare owned by B. F. Gilman, Esq., of that town, died of the distemper on Sunday night. At Howland, our correspondent writes, it is impossible to get a horse even to convey the mail, and Mr. F. Crommett, contractor from that place to Milo, carried the mail on his back 20 miles on Saturday. Mr. Crommett has lost one horse with the disease and has another very sick. The mails are also carried by "foot-men" from Sherman to Sherman Mills, and on many other routes in the upper part of this county and in Aroostook.

The Eastern, of this city, had risks to the amount of $205,000 within the limits of the burnt district, which amount will probably be reduced, as in the Union's risks, by Salvage.

The total risks of the National, of this city, in the burnt district amount to about $140,000. Salvage out. A meeting of the Stockholders will be held to-day.

The Bangor, of this city, had risks in the burnt district of about $50,000. Salvage out.

A dispatch from the office of the Home Insurance Co. of New York, announces to Messrs. Wiggin & Champlin, their agents in this city, that their Boston losses will not exceed one million dollars, which will be paid without affecting their business.

The Manager of the Liverpool and London and Globe Company (of England), telegraphs from Boston to D. M. Howard, agent in this city, that the liabilities of the Company in the burnt district do not exceed $1,721,000. The capital of the Company is $28,000,000.

P. M. Blake of this city, who received telegrams announcing that the Phoenix of Brooklyn, [illegible] not exceeding [illegible] $1,250,000, [illegible] Pole, Manager, [illegible] Royal loses $1,250,000; Pennsylvania loses half a million; all right."

MRS. LIVERMORE'S LECTURE. The first entertainment of Mr. L. A. Torrens' course, will be given in Music Hall, to-morrow evening. It is a lecture by Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, one of the most popular women lecturers in the field, who takes for a subject "What shall we do with our Daughters?" Mrs. Livermore is meeting with remarkable success as a lecturer, and wherever she goes she is greeted by large and attentive audiences. The Augusta Banner says:

"Her lecture on 'What shall we do with our Daughters?' discusses vital questions; and in a manner that wins unbounded applause. She holds her audience—the most intellectual and fashionable—as if spell-bound, for two hours at a stretch, and yet never wearying herself or her hearers. Unlike all other lecturers, she speaks entirely extemporaneously, and yet without the least hesitation or mistake and with the utmost ease and fluency. All in all, she is a most remarkable woman."

We might give scores of similar notices from the many we have before us, but will confine ourselves to only one more, from the experienced and critical manager of the New London Lyceum who in his report for 1871-2 says:—

"Mrs. Livermore's lecture, 'What shall we do with our Daughters?' was deemed by the masses to be a production which should be heard by the daughters and mothers of the nineteenth century. This, like Dr. Willit's lecture, was of a delicate nature; but both so full of truth and common sense, and presented in such chaste and unobtrusive language, that the most fastidious could not justly take offence. Mrs. Livermore's mental and physical resources, which enables her to edit a newspaper, and lecture five evenings per week for six months, challenge the wonder and admiration of both sexes. From close observation, it is believed that this was one of the most beneficial and acceptable lectures which has been delivered for many years."

CLEAN WORK.

There are a good many men whom this election has permanently disposed of as politicians. They, at least, shall "vex the world no more." As a final and desparate clutch upon political life they went into this coalition movement, going in to shear and coming out shorn to the very skin. There will be no tears shed over their final disposition, but rather rejoicing that in the thorough purification of politics so many of them are swept out of the way. Not to speak of the great leader himself, Mr. Greeley, on whose character the whole people have passed so emphatic a judgement in this State, Mr. Fenton is disposed of, and Chauncey Depew, and Littlejohn, and Cochrane, and some of lesser note but of like aspirations. In Massachusetts, Mr. Banks and Mr. Bird, and some others, are laid quietly away to mourn their folly and their mistakes. In other States the result is not less striking aspiring young editors, running a good while before they were sent, and old and worn-out party hacks are alike sent to a political bourne whence there is no return. The purification which Mr. Greeley has talked so much about has been complete.—[N. Y. Evening Post.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

A dispatch states that Bloxham, Democrat, is elected Governor of Florida.

A Galveston dispatch of Sunday says Texas is conceded to Greeley by 2,000 majority.

The managers of election at Atlanta, Ga., have been arrested and held to bail, charged with violation of the enforcement act.

At last accounts both parties claimed the election of Governor in Arkansas, the Republicans claiming a majority of 3,000 for Baxter.

A Cincinnati telegram says that several prominent Liberal Republicans, of a hopeful turn of mind, met there on Saturday and resolved to continue the organization.

Gov. Parker of New Jersey issued a circular closing all the State offices on Monday and ordering all the flags at half mast, and with his staff attended the funeral of Gen. Meade.

THE LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET IN LONDON—DIPLOMATIC SPEECHES. The festivities of Lord Mayor's Day in London concluded Saturday evening with the usual banquet at Guildhall. The members of the Cabinet, with the exception of Mr. Gladstone, the Foreign Ministers, leading members of Parliament and national and civic officials, were present, with a large number of distinguished guests. In the course of an address, the Lord Mayor, Sir Sidney Walter Low, in proposing the health of the representative of the United States, Mr. Moran, referred to the Geneva Arbitration, as follows:—

He said he was glad to have the opportunity of giving expression to the general feeling of satisfaction as to the result of the Geneva Arbitration. By this peaceful settlement of the dispute the glory of the nations had been enhanced. America's greatness was England's greatness. The two countries, separated only by the ocean were one in language, literature and history. He was sure the Americans, as they watched the progress of England, would heartily rejoice at the advance she made.

Lord Selborne (late Sir Roundell Palmer) British Consul at Geneva, in a few happy remarks, dwelt on the satisfactory termination of the Alabama dispute and advised the payment of the Geneva award without grumbling.

Lord Granville responded to the toast to Her Majesty's Minister. He referred at length to the Treaty of Washington and the successful carrying out of the provisions. Arbitration, he said, was not always possible, particularly when national feelings were aroused on both sides. He rejoiced that England adopted it, although, as the vanquished suitor she was disappointed in the result of the award, which, however, only affected her purse and not her honor.

In alluding to the San Juan boundary decision, Lord Granville intimated that its importance had been greatly exaggerated. The Government would be ready at the opening of Parliament to give full explanation. He congratulated the country on the conclusion of a new treaty of Commerce with France, denounced the continuance of the slave trade and in conclusion said that the Government was resolved to maintain firmly the honor of the Crown while desirous of promoting peace everywhere.

The Press says that in the town of Cornville, Somerset county, two ballots were given for Victoria C. Woodhull for President, and Charles Sumner for Vice-President. The electors were Seward Mitchell, Henrietta C. Moore, Joseph B. Hall, ——— Nevins, Olive J. Woodman, B. D. Shaw, and A. P. Barker. The leader in this two men party was Seward Mitchell, who honored Mr. Kimball with his vote for Governor.

The great trespass suit of the Emma Mining Company against the Illinois Tunnel Company, was decided at Salt Lake, Saturday, in favor of plaintiffs, who obtained nominal damages of $5,000. The decision practically settles the whole question of the title although it is understood that the Emma Mine Company bought out the Tunnel interest. The issue of the trial involved one million dollars.

A steam Road wagon from the Navy Yard, made its appearance on Chestnut street Philadelphia, Saturday, drawing a truck load of cotton bales. It created quite a sensation.

The Republican members of the Spanish Cortes propose to demand of the Government the immediate emancipation of all slaves. Their plan provides for indemnification of slaveowners in Cuba, at the rate of 1,000 Pesetas per head and in Porto Rico at 1,500 Pesetas per head.

We learn that they have made very extensive additions to their entertainment since they exhibited here.

A MELANCHOLY BREAK-DOWN.—There are lively break-downs that make an audience laugh, and there are sad and sorrowful break-downs that make the kind-hearted grieve.— To the latter class belongs the enervation of body and mind which is usually called "general debility," or "nervous weakness," and which when neglected, too often terminates in atrophy and death. A wholesome medicated stimulant is the one thing needed in cases of this description, and science and experience unite in pointing to PLANTATION BITTERS as the true specific. The fact that it combines the properties of an invigorant with those of a regulator and alterative, in exactly the proportion necessary to produce a radical change in the tone of the system, and the action of the digestive and secretive organs, is an unanswerable argument in its favor as a general restorative.

Among the numerous advantages which may be derived from the occasional use of SMOLANDER'S BUCHU are that it is a positive preventative and counteractor of mental and physical debility, kidney, bladder and glandular disease, loss of vigor, female irregularities, mucous and involuntary discharges, general debility, and for maladies immediately connected with the urino-genital organs.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Sufferers from disease, these preparations are indorsed by half the world! With such testimonials, are they not worth trying? No internal or external disease can resist them.— Sold 78 Maiden Lane, N. Y. Price 25 cents per box. Ask for new style; the old is counterfeited.

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP HYPOPHOSPHITES will not only supply the waste going on in the brain, but will enable the mind to endure a greater tax than before. TO HORSE OWNERS.—The horse disease which is now raging to such an alarming extent throughout the country, is being cured by Dr. J. Miller's Soothing and Healing Balsam. This is no new medicine for horses, it has been used by veterinary surgeons and noted horsemen throughout the United States for the past fifteen years. In Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and cities throughout the country, the Balsam is used and recommended by veterinary surgeons, public and private stable keepers. Horses taken with this new disease can be cured in a few days by using the Balsam. When the disease made its first appearance in Providence, R. I., horses that were treated with this Balsam are entirely cured. The Balsam is given, four ounces twice a day internally, and the throat and glands bathed; if the limbs swell bathe with the Balsam freely, give a tablespoonful of ginger and salt in their feed twice a day; by this treatment if the horse is cared for, will soon recover. GREATEST DENTAL INVENTION!

The Morrison Engine!

Having used one of these machines for nearly two months, I feel that too much cannot be said in its praise. It does its work elegantly in excavating decay, I have yet to find the patient who has been caused any suffering whatever by its use, whereas by the old hand method more or less pain was always experienced. It does it more thoroughly and in about one-fourth the time consumed by the old method. My patients are every one delighted with its use, saying that under no consideration would they be induced to return to the old method. I should be pleased to exhibit its action to any who desire to see it.

MEDDLING FRIENDS

BY JOHN G. SAXE

A little red rose bloomed all alone
[illegible] hedge by the highway side,
And the wind came by with a pitying moan,
As it was to the floweret allied.

"You are choked with dust from the sandy ledge,
Now see what a friend can do!
I will pierce a hole in the tangled hedge
And let the breeze come through!"

"Nay, let me be—I am well enough!"
Said the Rose in deep dismay,
"But the wind is always rude and rough,"
And of course he had his way.

And the breeze blew soft on the little red Rose,
And now she was sore afraid,
For the naughty boys—her ancient foes—
[illegible] through where the [illegible] was made.

"[illegible]," said the Wind, when he came again,
And looked at the trembling flower,
"You are out of place, it is very plain,
You are meant for a lady's bower!"

"Nay, let me be," said the shuddering Rose,
"No sorrow I ever had known
[illegible] you came here to break the hedge—
Now please to let me alone."

But the will of the Wind is strong as death,
And little he recked her cry;
He plucked her up with his mighty breath
And away to the town he flew.

Oh, all too rough was the windy ride
For a rose so weak and small;
And [illegible] her leaves on every side
[illegible] to scatter and fall!

"Now what is this?" said the pondering Wind,
"The Rose in fragments [illegible]!
This paltry stem is all I find,
[illegible] I meant it well!"

[illegible] came just this—that meddling friend
Said the dying stalk "is sure
[illegible] the matter [illegible]

LA HAUTE ÉCOLE.

I.

A long oval tent, half sable, half green [illegible] of Harman's circus, for it was a travelling circus and not given to overloading itself with superfluous baggage—badly lighted, strong smelling, the canvas brown with wear and of age, the grass underfoot beaten down by the hoofs of the horses and trodden into the miry ground; an animated scene, with the masses of attendants and musicians scattered about it, but strange and novel to me, standing there, while John Harman, erst groom to my father, rested himself after the fatigues of the first part of the programme. He was [illegible] his chair with his thumbs caught in the armholes of his waistcoat, and his round red face alternately serious and merry as he ran over his history of the last ten years. He left us to help his brother, who was always in the horsemanship line in the [illegible] of the circus, but, since then [illegible] Harman has had and our old groom became sole proprietor.

"[illegible] would be pleased to see the old place and the people to-night," he said, nodding at the [illegible] which shut off the ring and the [illegible] seats, where the spectators were [illegible] the second part of the programme. "And [illegible] would be pleased to see Alf and Mamzelle there, poor [illegible] would. And to [illegible] too. Look at them, Mr George! [illegible] like a picture, don't they?"

He pointed to a white Arab horse standing [illegible] with a girl in a tall [illegible] and dark [illegible] habit on the saddle [illegible] with a slight smile at Harman's [illegible] visibly [illegible].

"[illegible], Mamzelle," laughed Harman—"do you fancy he was [illegible] join us, and [illegible] what a pretty clown he [illegible]."

He rose from his chair and [illegible] against [illegible] looked up at the girl [illegible] grimace. But [illegible] there came no answering smile [illegible] upon her face. It was a beautiful [illegible] with delicate, regular features and warm southern tint, dark as a Spaniard's, [illegible] haughty and fierce as the flush [illegible] and her large eyes [illegible] fixed upon me with a startled look as [illegible] someone whom she had [illegible] before and her thoughts were busy in [illegible] the past.

"Well, Mamzelle," said Harman, as though she had answered his last question—"If you'd not think he will do for a clown, put him upon a horse, and he can go in [illegible]. He can ride a little. I taught [illegible] almost before he could walk—[illegible] Mr George," appealing to me—"[illegible] looked upon old This [illegible] that day, be sure, and now you [illegible] an officer, and will be marry[illegible] doubt and having [illegible] of your [illegible]."

[illegible] moved when Harman said [illegible] an officer, but he turned away, [illegible] waiting for him to speak, and called [illegible] men at the other side of the tent, "[illegible] make haste there. That's [illegible] fellow who [illegible] than the others. 'Put [illegible] I tell you.'" [illegible] apologetically over the rim of [illegible] the beer before obeying the [illegible] Harman busied himself in examining the girth and trappings of the Arab.

"[illegible] your fortune to-night, Mamzelle," he said, glancing up at her—"There are a lot of swells in the front row—[illegible] the music. Are you all ready?" [illegible] and pushing aside the curtain he led [illegible] into the ring.

It was the first night of the circus at Hel[illegible], and the words of the programme, "[illegible] École, [illegible] introduced [illegible] Céleste Dupont," had [illegible] a little as [illegible] was coming, but when the white [illegible] they applauded loudly. Their applause was loud [illegible] as the performance went on, [illegible] wonderfully well [illegible] upon her saddle with [illegible] close-fitting habit [illegible] galloped, and capered, [illegible] well bred carriage [illegible] strap.

[illegible] Harman had ex[illegible] she would, and, if she pleased the rus[illegible] quite a sensation among the [illegible] the front row. They were [illegible] many of them cavalry men, for both [illegible] quartered at Helsingleigh—[illegible] they had not been bored more than [illegible] country circus, they were [illegible] the charms of the young [illegible] jumped through hoops and over [illegible] nearly on to the horse's back, [illegible] had been altogether callous to the [illegible] of the shipwrecked sailor laying his [illegible] steed, but here [illegible] more to their taste—per[illegible] both horse and rider, such [illegible] not expected to see. It was [illegible] applauded the most [illegible] was they [illegible] the recall when the performance was [illegible]. Harman was in ecstacies of delight—"I knew she would make a hit," he kept saying, rubbing his hands, as I could remember [illegible] when our favorite colt came galloping down the course at Broughton Market, [illegible] length ahead of the rest for the town [illegible]. And when the girl returned he [illegible] into the tent as the applause still [illegible] he led the horse again toward the curtain for the further recall.

"I am not going in again to-night," she said shortly, jerking the reins out of his hands [illegible] the horse.

"[illegible] Mamzelle, listen!"

"I don't care. They may pull the place down before I will go." She gathered up her habit and withdrew her foot from the stirrup. "Will you help me down?" she asked, putting out her hands.

"[illegible] they want you again."

"Let them," she replied, her dark eyes flashing like jewels as the light caught them. And without waiting for his help, she sprang recklessly from the saddle.

Harman muttered something as the girl stood before him with her face slightly flushed [illegible] the exercise, thrown proudly back, [illegible] shrugging his shoulders went out into the ring. The applause increased for a minute as he appeared and then died away—The music struck up again, and the next lot went in comprising all those who remained in the tent.

Drawing the gauntlet off her hand, the girl stood by the horse, fondling its soft nose, till one of the grooms approached to lead it away. Then, walking slowly, backward and forward over the trodden grass, she waited till the man left the tent and as soon as he was gone she came toward me with her gliding step.

"Why did you not go in for your second recall, Mademoiselle?" I asked. "No wonder they"——

"I did not choose to, Monsieur," she said, cutting me short, but speaking less seriously than she had spoken to Harman. The flush had faded from her face, and the defiant look, with which she had looked at him, had died out of her eyes, and, somehow, the girl, who sprang off her horse five minutes before, seemed changed into a woman. The same number of years, probably, had passed over our heads, but she seemed infinitely older than I from her manner, and she looked older too, than her age, now that I saw her close, as she took off her tall hat and pushed back the dark hair from her forehead with her ungloved hand. My [illegible] such as it was, vanished. [illegible] quick answer. She came close to me—so close that I could have put my hands upon her rounded shoulders, and said in a quiet, earnest voice, strangely different to the way she had spoken before, with a slight foreign accent, for the first time becoming noticeable

"How did you come to know Mr. Harman?"

"He was groom to my father, when I was quite a little fellow."

"Where?"

"At home. At Waltonhill."

"Your name?"

I could no more help answering her questions than I could looking into the depths of her great dark eyes, that held me under their spell.

"George Fordyce."

"George," she repeated, as though she knew I was a Fordyce before I spoke.

"Yes." But the girl hesitated, she did not move away, though she looked no longer up in my face. She was not satisfied, her motive, whatever it was, for asking these questions, was not answered. I saw her lips tremble, and the color every now and then flush over her brow. There was something more she wanted to know, but she was at a loss how to ask it; there might be some secret she feared to betray—pride, doubt, honor, who could tell what was struggling in her mind, and she was silent. Rushing impetuously, as it were, to her succor, while I could feel the blood tingling in my ears as she glanced up with timid, wistful eyes, as though she longed to speak and durst not, I blurted out in a thoughtless eager manner

"What is it? What do you want to ask about my family? Tell me and trust me."

I was too candid, too bluff, in a diplomatic sense. I made a great mistake. But I was young and not accustomed to feigning in my speech, and though I startled her, and trod so roughly upon her half willing confidence as to scatter it to the winds, she saw that I was sincere, but her timidity vanished as I spoke, and Mademoiselle Dupont was again as a stranger to me.

"I—I want to know nothing about your family. Why should I?" And she laughed a little at my brusqueness. "You reminded me of some one I have seen. That's all."

"Of the same name?" I asked quickly, turning the tables unexpectedly upon her, so that the fierce look flashed momentarily into her eyes till she laughed again.

"Psh! What a boy it is," she said moving away. Then she turned and looked at me again, but there was a sad smile upon her lips. "I was a little curious, that was all—Don't think about it, except to remember that I am grateful to you." And, before I could answer, with a slight bow she hurried out of the tent.

Perplexed by the girl's manner and angry with myself, I loitered about the circus, till the people left. Mademoiselle was an enigma: she had evidently seen better days than those spent with Harman's troupe, but who was she—what did she know about my family? I did not tell Harman that she had spoken to me, but I asked him about her, as we stood in the open air, when the performance was over. The circus and tent were behind us, both dark and shut up for the night, the different vans in front were ablaze with light all save one, which stood apart from the rest, an ugly top heavy, black object in the bright moonlight, with only a dull, red glimmer shining through the blinds.

"It's hers," said Harman, pointing to it. "Bless you, she goes it like a queen among us, always lives there, and never comes near the rest of the troupe at the public. I know little about her. She's as high spirited as a thorough bred. They won't bear the curb, nor she either. Quite so—she rides well and she draws, so I put up with her whims. One can't have everything you know. True, she hasn't been always in this line, that's clear, but I don't know what she was before she came to me. Let me see. It's nearly three years ago. We were at Calford, and I was just leaving the tent after looking at the horses and things as I did a minute ago, when up she comes, all muddy and footsore, and asks me to help her. I had a lantern in my hand, and I turned its light upon her as she spoke, and her great, black eyes and pale face—it was paler then than it is now—some how made me take a fancy to her there and then. I got one of the women to lodge her for the night, and give her something to eat; and she has been with me ever since. With all her whims and high manners I like the girl, and all the troupe like her, for she's mortal kind if any of them are in trouble. May be she has had some of that herself. I think she has, but she's very close, and I never have asked her. See! that's the little girl—Harry the clown's daughter—who waits up on her, and she teaches the little thing to read and write, and speak her own foreign language."

The child thus pointed out was coming down the steps of the van. She turned round when she reached the grass to say "Good night" again, before she ran off. And Mademoiselle, from inside, answered "Good night" and then came to watch the child. She closed the lower half of the front door in a dreamy, unconscious manner, and resting her arms upon it leant forward, looking up at the sky. She was still in her riding-habit, and the moonlight fell upon her as she stood there with a weary look in her upturned face and great, heavy tears gathering slowly and glistening down her cheeks.

"Eh! eh! Mamzelle," broke out Harman, speaking with more than his ordinary kindness. "Why, what's the matter? And after your success to-night, too."

The sound of his voice broke her dream, for she started up. Instead of answering, she bent her head and went quickly back into the van. And as the door closed behind her, the moonlight streamed coldly upon its hearse like paint.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 State Street, opposite Kilby Street, Boston.

AFTER an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms, with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practioners with whom I have had official intercourse.

CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

And Imitations.

The high reputation gained by Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam for Coughs, Colds, Asthma and Consumption has given rise to spurious compounds which are peddled out through the country called the same. The genuine Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is prepared only by F. W. Kinsman, the Inventor and sole proprietor. To protect yourselves from imposition examine the bottle and see that the words "F. W. Kinsman, Druggist, Augusta, Me." are blown in the glass of the bottle.

Having examined the formula from which Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is prepared we recommend it as a safe and reliable medicine for the cure of coughs, colds, whooping cough, asthma, &c., &c.

NORTH AUBURN, Maine, Aug 31, 1872.

MR. FRANK KINSMAN, Augusta, Me.—Dear Sir: I have been troubled with lung disease for fifteen years. I was under Dr. H. Irish's treatment of Turner Village, for ten years; he was the leading physician of the town. I have had five good physicians as there were in Auburn and Turner to try to cure me, and other physicians have examined my lungs, one of them, Dr. Alonzo Garcelon of Lewiston, gave me medical advice several times, he said I never could expect to recover, for there was a large cavity on the upper part of the left lung. I was confined to my bed for 23 years. I had tubercles on my lungs, and they were ulcerated very bad. I have had several bleeding spells, and was brought so low that I could only be moved on a sheet for five months to have my bed made. My cough was always the worst in the morning. The doctors did their best to cure me, and after trying five of the leading patent medicines I came to the conclusion that there was nothing on earth that would give me relief when I needed it the most, but now I find I have got to give up that idea, for Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam has done it. I was surprised one morning after reading your advertisement and procuring a bottle of your Balsam of Wakefield Bros., at Lewiston, and taking some, that it did not make me sick as other medicines had done. I found it very pleasant to take. I have used three bottles, no bleeding now, no ulcers no tubercles. I cannot find words to tell you how much better I am since taking your Balsam. I send this my unsolicited testimonial, for the benefit of the many thousands who are suffering from lung disease that they may be induced to try this wonderful healing Balsam. Hoping that God may bless you in the great work you are doing by relieving and curing the suffering. I am yours respectfully,

REBECCA W. COFFIN.

Mr. F. W. Kinsman, Augusta, Me.

Dear Sir: Having used your Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam in my family with complete success, I take pleasure in adding my testimonial to a remedy of such excellent medical properties. The greatest success of all was the complete cure of a cough of five months duration. Two bottles of your valuable remedy effected a cure that four skillful physicians failed to do. I would not be without it, and cheerfully recommend it to all.

Wishing you success in your wonderful work, I remain yours respectfully,

LYNDE HOTEL,

ROCKLAND MAINE

G. A. LYNDE, - - Proprietor.

THE HOUSE has been erected the present season, on the corner of Park and Main St Rockland, and is now open for the public patronage.

Clean beds, pleasant rooms, good fare and careful attendance, will be offered to the guests of the house, and no pains will be spared to make their stay agreeable. Nearly every room looks out upon the bay, and every room in the house is pleasant, thus affording to persons desirous of enjoying the sea breeze and spending the summer months, an opportunity to do so, without locating on an Island where they can enjoy the sea air and nothing else.

Have taken especial pains to prepare convenient sample rooms.

Carriages to take passengers to and from the house free of charge.

Good Livery Stable connected with the house and good stable for transient horses.

GEORGE'S HOTEL,

MAIN ST., THOMASTON, MAINE.

This old, well-known and favorite House has during the past winter, been thoroughly overhauled, remodeled, and supplied with new furniture in style equal to any Hotel of the day, is now ready for permanent and transient boarders.

The rooms are all light and airy, the arrangement being such, that each room has a view upon MAIN STREET, a street unsurpassed in beauty by none in the State. Making it a most pleasant resort for visitors from cities during the summer season.

The Larder will be kept fully supplied with the best the market affords, at all times and seasons, and no pains or expense spared to make the condition of all who may patronize the House agreeable and happy.

Central and commodious Sample Rooms are open in connection with the House, to accommodate Commercial Travelling Agents.

Coaches leave the House to connect with all the steamers touching at Rockland from east and west, also to convey passengers to and from the cars.

Carleton's well known Livery Stable is connected with the Hotel.

All old acquaintances and friends at the LYNDE HOUSE, where the undersigned officiated as Clerk from its opening, are invited not to forget his present residence. He will be at home and happy to meet them all.
